How to use these forms?

These pages allow you exercise in putting some thought into who would take your place in the event that you could not take care of your pet(s) yourself. If you get stuck call and ask your veterinarians office what they can and cannot do for you in short term cases. Some local shelters offer emergency assistance too.

In addition to the pages that follow you might need to consider having your pet parent know more than you realize. For instance:

1. Do your emergency contact people know Pet First Aid & CPR?
2. Do you have clothes for your pet? And would a beneficiary know where to find them?
3. Does your pet have social media? Can your beneficiary access your account?
4. Does the rest of your family know your wishes? So there isn't a fight in the end?

There are many aspects to consider and while there is much more than we have here, we figured the following pages would be a good start. May you live a long and healthy life with your pet and may whoever prospers continue to be able to do the same!

A little something extra

Write your pet a letter. Tell them what they meant to you so if their next of kin becomes their caretaker they will have a momentum of your emotion and a reminder of how deeply you cared!

Dear Emma Zen,

I Love You with all of my heart! I have spent every day of your life with you, literally every day. I am awarded the truest honor of touch. For I have held your for hours, in case you don't know Emma Zen is a biker dog and so far we have over 37,000 miles together (11.25.13) Many times you are with your dog but to touch you so much, by osmosis I am a better. You are still here while I write this and maybe someday I will run across it when you're gone. I hope I remember then that you changed my life by taking me out of the rat race and teaching me how to do the right thing for the right reasons, without competition or judgments or fear. To just change one pets chance of survival and in that being enough. My God you did so much more! When I look back on my life my biggest blessing in life will be all that you gave to me!
